Lessons where the trainer as well as the student/s are present is the classical set-up of a language training session.

This kind of training in its pure form is shortly going to be replaced by a combination with online/telephone teaching, the so-called

Online/telephone learning

For your high-level executives who are globally active and need lessons wherever they are on this globe or for any other employees interested, we offer online/telephone lessons.

These lessons are booked by the company like the face-to-face lessons. The student registers with www.skype.com, the VoIP programme with the best technical support, gets a headset for the notebook, calls the assigned teacher at the arranged time and has his lesson in the quietness of his hotel room or his office space in front of his notebook screen.

For online/telephone lessons we recommend a maximum length of 60 minutes as they take a lot more concentration than face-to-face lessons.

Our online/telephone learning trainers have all undergone a formal training with this medium and customize the training just like any other face-to-face training.
